1.6 Electoral system in Bosnia and Herzegovina

Scheme 1. Presentation of the Electoral system in Bosnia and Herzegovina

- There are two systems of election implemented in Bosnia and Herzegovina:
- majority system (system of simple majority), and proportionate representation system.

For the majority system (system of simple majority) it is characteristic that the winner takes all, and in the general elections in BiH it is implemented in the course of electing the members of the Presidency of BiH and the president and vice-president of RS.

² Decision on concluding and confirming excerpt from the Central Voters Register for the 2018 General Elections and on publishing number of voters for every constituency

Proportionate representation system in the general elections in BiH is implemented in the course of electing the representatives for the House of Representatives of the Parliamentary Assembly of BiH, the House of Representatives of the Parliament of the Federation of BiH, the National Assembly of RS and cantonal assemblies in the Federation of BiH.

The distribution of mandates in the proportionate representation system is performed by implementing the Sainte-Laguë method for the converting the votes into mandates, dividing the total number of votes realized with the odd numbers 1,3,5, 7,9,11 etc., as far as it is necessary to distribute mandates.

Political subjects may not participate in the distribution of mandates if they do not win more than 3% of the total number of valid votes in the electoral unit in which they are running for a certain governmental body (election threshold).

The mandates awarded to the list of the political subject in the stated procedure are distributed to the candidates on the list of candidates from whom each won no less than 20% of the total number of valid votes received by the list, from the highest to the lowest number of votes. The remaining candidates, who did not cross the stated threshold of 20%, maintain the position they had in the list of candidates, regardless of the individually won number of votes based on the voters' preferences.

In the course electing the members of the House of Representatives of the Parliamentary Assembly of BiH, the House of Representatives of the Parliament of the Federation of BiH and the National Assembly of RS, in the provisions of the Election Law of BiH, the number of mandates is defined that is awarded to these governmental bodies from multimember electoral units, i.e. the number of compensation mandates. The compensation mandates are awarded to those political subjects that are, in reference to the realized election results, won a disproportionate number of regular mandates (or won none), and that crossed the legally determined threshold of 3% in the calculation of votes in all multimember electoral units, by applying the Sainte-Laguë method.

Verification of political subjects and lists of candidates

- Political subjects, according to the Election Law in BiH, are:
- political parties (in order to participate in the election, the political party has to be registered with the authorized body in accordance with the law, that is supported by evidence in the course of applying for verification with the supporting documentation),

- independent candidates (they file an application for verification with the name, surname and personal information of the independent candidate with supporting documentation),
- coalitions (two or more verified political parties that wish to form a coalition file an application for verification under a unique name of the coalition with supporting documentation) lists of independent candidates (two or more verified independent candidates may join to file a single list of independent candidates for verification with supporting documentation).

After the procedure of verifying the political subjects for participation in the elections, the Central Election Commission BiH verifies the lists of candidates of verified political parties and coalitions (candidate lists of independent candidates and lists of independent candidates are verified in the course of verifying these political subjects).

The number of candidates in the list of candidates for multimember electoral units may be greater by 5 candidates from the number of awarded mandates, in the course of which the legal obligation is determined on proportionate representation of male and female sex in the list of candidates (at least 40% of representation of either sexes). Candidates that are less represented on the basis of sex are distributed according to the legally defined rule: from the first two candidates, one is the representative of the underrepresented sex, in the first 5 candidates at least 2 are of underrepresented sex, among the first 8 candidates, 3 candidates are of the underrepresented sex, etc.

For awarding compensation mandates in the House of Representatives of the Parliamentary Assembly of BiH, the House of Representatives of the Parliament of the Federation of BiH and the National Assembly of RS the verified political parties and coalitions file a compensation list of candidates, which contains only the names of candidates that are already in the regular lists of candidates for the same election level.

1.7 Electoral administration

Authorized bodies for implementation of elections in Bosnia and Herzegovina are election commissions and election boards, i.e. :

- Central Election Commission Bosnia and Herzegovina,
- Municipal and City election commissions and Election Commission of Brčko District of BiH,

The Election Board consists of three (if the extract from the Central Voters' Register for a certain polling station has up to 350 voters registered) or five members (if the extract from the Central Voters' Register for a certain polling station has over 350 voters registered), from which one is the president of the election board. The president and members of the election board have deputies. The election board immediately manages the work of the polling station, ensuring the regularity and secrecy of voting and records the results of voting at the polling station.

Supplementary counting form – counting votes for candidates

3.7 Remarks of observers

In the course of observing the election process the observer should be aware of the atmosphere outside and inside the polling station. If he/she notices problems or breaching the election procedure, the observer addresses the election board president. The manner in which he/she addresses the president of the election board may be such that it must not be interpreted as providing instruction, orders or as interference in the election procedure.

Every observer should differentiate the irrelevant errors in implementing the rules and procedures from those breaches that may roughly harm the election procedure and influence the results of the elections.

If the president of the election board fails to remove the noted lacking or breach in the election procedure, the observer introduces his notices in the Minutes on work of the election board, in the Reporting Form⁸ and signs his name.

The observer is entitled to ask for a copy of the Minutes on work from the polling station from the municipal/city election commission the work of which he observed.

The accredited observer or political subject may, based on the remarks stated in the Form, file an objection to the body entitled for implementing the elections.

The observer should inform the municipal/city election commission immediately in the following instances:

- ❖ if he/she or other observers is not allowed to enter the polling station or he/she has been removed from the polling station;
- ❖ if there is chaos in the polling station;
- ❖ if he/she is disabled from entering remarks in the Minutes on work of the election board (ZARBO).

The accredited observer signs a Statement on the Code of Conduct and is obliged to follow the listed code of conduct:

8 OPINIONS OR REMARKS - Form - the part in which the opinion or annotation of the election board members is entered, voters or accredited observers. The election board member, voter or accredited observer may enter his opinion or remarks on the voting procedure, which he signs in person (opinion or remark that is not signed in person shall not be considered). The observer may place explained remarks on the work of election boards in writing, which is appended with the Record (the president is obliged to record this instance in the Record in writing separately.).

- ✓ to be impartial in accordance with his duties;
- ✓ not to interfere in the election process that includes the recording of the voters in the Central Voters' Register, procedure on the date of elections or counting votes and to honor the secrecy of voting;
- ✓ not to try and perform any influence on the person in reference to their selection of voting options or the manner in which they will mark the ballot;
- ✓ to honor the provisions of the Election Law in BiH.

The body for implementing elections will revoke the status of the accredited observer and remove him/her from the polling station during the observing of the election process if:

- ❖ he/she disrupts the election activities,
- ❖ he/she does not respect the secrecy of voting,
- ❖ he/she does not wear official accreditation,
- ❖ he/she wears markings that relate him/her to a certain political subject.

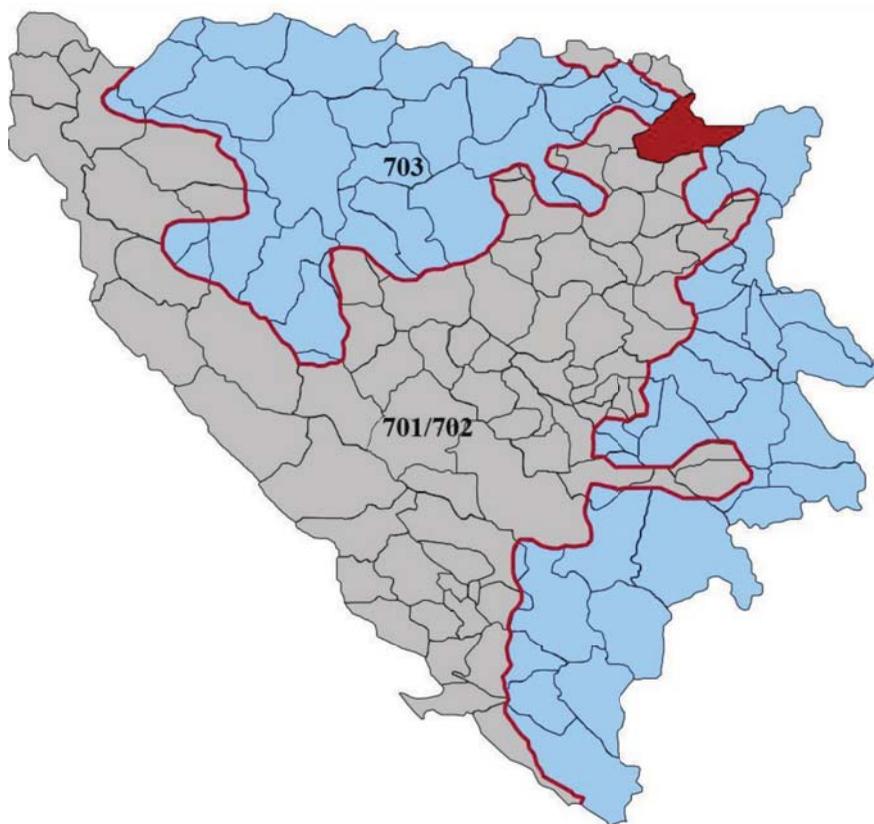

In the procedure of removal of the accredited observer from the polling station, the representative of the body for implementing the elections has to previously warn the accredited observer that disrupts the election process and take all other disposable measures and actions to end the disruption, and if the accredited observer continues with the disruption, he/she will be removed from the polling station.

Any removal from the polling station has to be recorded in the Form Z8 of the Minutes on work of the election board (ZARBO).

The authorized body for implementation of elections will inform the political subject, association ,i.e. international observer on the revoking of the accreditation.

Code of Conduct for International Election Observers⁹

International observation of elections is accepted worldwide today and is implemented by inter-governmental and international organizations and associations in order to provide an impartial and accurate assessment of the nature of election process for the benefit of the citizens of the country in which the elections are being held and the benefit of the international community. For this reason, it is very important to ensure the integrity of international observation of elections, and for all those included in the International Election Observation Mission including the short term and long term observers, delegates for assessment, specialized observation teams and mission leaders have to be obliged and honor the Code of Conduct.

Honor the sovereignty and international human rights – elections are an expression of sovereignty that belongs to the people of a country, whose expression of free will provides a basis for authority and legitimacy of the government. The rights of citizens to elect and be elected in periodical, real democratic elections are internationally acknowledged human rights and require the realization of a series of human rights and liberties. The election observers must honor the sovereignty of the host country and the human rights and basic liberties of its citizens.

Honor the laws of the country and authority of the electorate – Observers must honor the laws of the country of the host country and the authority of bodies in charge of implementation of the election process. Observers must follow any legal instruction of governmental, security and electorate of the authority of host country. Observers also have to have a polite attitude toward the election officials and other national governmental bodies. Observers must record whether the laws, provisions or actions of national and/or election officials unnecessarily burden or obstruct the realization of the election rights guaranteed by the law, the constitution or implementable international instruments.

Honor the integrity of the International Election Observation Mission - Observers must honor and protect the integrity of the International Election Observation Mission. This means to honor the Code of Conduct, any written instructions (such as the scope of work, directions and guidelines) and verbal instructions from the managers of the observatory mission. Observers must: attend all meetings, trainings and collegiums of the observatory mission, get to know the Election Law, provisions and other relevant laws according to the order of the observatory mission, and monitor carefully the methodology that is used by the observatory mission. Observers must also inform the head of the observatory mission of instances of conflict of interests that they may have, as well as on the inappropriate behavior of other observers that are a part of the mission.

To be strictly politically impartial at all times – Observers must be strictly politically impartial, inclusive during their leisure time in the host country. They may not express nor demonstrate prejudice or advantages related to the national governmental bodies, political parties, candidates, referendum matters or disputable matters in the election process. Observers also may not implement any activity that could reasonably be interpreted as preference or providing political advantage for any political candidate in the host country, such as wearing or presenting any political symbols, colors, flags or accepting valuables from political candidates.

They must not obstruct the elections – Observers must not obstruct any element of the election process, including the pre-election processes, voting, counting and presentation of results of elections after the election date. Observers may at the location remark to the election officials to irregularities, fraud or significant problems, unless this is legally prohibited and if they have to do this in a non-obstructive manner. Observers may ask questions to the election officials, political party representatives and other observers at the polling stations and answer questions about their activities until the observers obstruct the elections. Voters may ask and receive an answer from the observers but the observers may not ask for who or which party or referendum position they voted.

Present appropriate identification – Observers must clearly present the identification provided by the mission for observing the elections and the identification required by the national governmental bodies and must present it to the election officials and other stakeholders among the national governmental bodies.

Maintain the accuracy of noting and professionalism in drawing conclusions –

All remarks of observers must be accurate and understandable, and positive and negative factors have to be noted, making the difference between the relevant and irrelevant and identifying the models that might have a significant influence to the integrity of the election process. Decisions of observers must be based on the highest principles of information accuracy and impartiality of analysis, making the difference between the subjective factors and objective evidence. Observers must base all their conclusions on facts and evidence and must not jump to conclusions. Observers also must keep records on the locations where they observed the elections, notices and other relevant information instructed by the International Election Observation Mission and deliver such documents to the mission.

Abstain from commenting in public or media before the statement of the mission – Observers must abstain from providing any personal comments on their notices to the press or members of the public before the observatory mission issues a statement unless otherwise instructed by the leadership of the observatory mission. Observers may explain the nature of the observatory mission, its activities and other matters that the observatory mission finds appropriate. They should direct the media and other stakeholders to the individuals determined by the observatory mission.

Cooperate with other election observers – Observers must be aware of other election observation missions, whether domestic or international and must cooperate with them according to the instructions of the leadership of the observation mission.

Act appropriately – Observers must act appropriately and respect others, in reference to the expression of oversensitivity to culture and customs of the host country, use the evaluation in personal contacts well and act professionally at the highest level even during their leisure time.

Breaching the Code of Conduct – In the instance of doubts regarding the breaching of the Code of Conduct, the International Election Observation Mission will conduct an investigation. If severe breach is determined, the observer may lose his/her observer accreditation or be fired from the observation mission. Authorities for such decisions are granted only to the leadership of the mission for observing the elections.

Statement on acting according to the Code of Conduct – Every person that is included in this mission of observing the elections must read and understand this code and sign the statement on acting according to it.

Editor's note

Stana Danilović, President of the Municipal Election Commission of Brod

“From the point of view of municipal election commissions, the handbook is of multiple significance, because it contains information related to accreditation of observers of political subjects which simplifies the procedure to political subjects and election commissions; next, the observers have the basic information available in one place concerning their status, prohibited activities and possibilities of objection and with a timely insight into the Handbook there will be a decrease in the possibility of performing any illicit action in the polling station, with the use of correctly filled in forms. Previous experience indicates that the interruptions of work of polling stations often occurred due to objections of observers that were not familiar with the voting procedure and determining the results. So, the handbook is educational and useful tool for observers and I believe that it will contribute to the improvement of technical implementation of elections in BiH, as well as the decrease in the number of objections made by observers.“

Ivanka Arapović Galić, president of the Municipal Election Commission of Posušje

“From extensive experience I have to underline that handbooks for both the election boards and for accredited observers are extremely useful, because by reading the handbook and having it available at the election date both will know their duties and rights.

Elections are not simple and only the sufficiently educated members of election boards and accredited users may be a guarantee for a regularly implemented election process and consequently the election results. Through the correct work and engagement of the election board members and accredited observers, in the manner of everyone performing their share of work and that they do not disrupt each other's work, will we have election results according to the demands of our citizens. Any action of the election board members and observers that is not in accordance with the election rules leads to a breach of the election will of the voters, which may finally lead to sanctions for both categories. The Council of Europe and the Central Election Commission has to be appraised for making the handbook, along with the associations for observing the elections in performing practical trainings of the observers.“
